FOUR GENERATIONS

This picture of the Hume family easily assumes the title “Four Generations of Sooners,” for Charles Robinson Hume, a great-grandfather of this family, aged 85 years, Michigan, '74 M.D., made the run into original Oklahoma in 1889 and has been a university Dad of two sons for more than 38 years. Next there is Grandfather Carleton Ross Hume, '98 A.B., '00 M.A., Kansas, '04 L.L.B., who made the Cherokee Strip run in 1893 and has one son, Ross Gossard Hume, '29 A.B., '31 L.L.B., and two daughters, Dorothy Anne Hume and Betty Verne Hume who are attending the university. The fourth generation in the Hume family is Charles Robert Hume, aged four and one-half months, the son of Ross Hume and Gladys McDonald Hume, '30 B.A., who will probably be of the class of 1953. Each member of the Hume family shown in this cut is a first born child.

Education in the south

It is interesting that in the south, where the heaviest assaults on educational budgets are being made, educators are the poorest paid already and do the most work for a third less than in eastern educational institutions.

Dr. Wilson Gee of the University of Virginia made a survey on a grant of the Social Science Research Council of conditions in forty-seven southern colleges and universities and in fifty-two northern and western ones. He found, according to his new book Research Barriers in the South (The Century Co., New York) that southern professors carry a teaching load of about thirty per cent more than the northern or western professor and are paid about one third less than their more fortunate colleagues in the north and west. An added barrier in the way of the southern professor is that living conditions are about as costly as in the eastern college towns.

The result of having an underpaid group of teachers who are overworked is that little research contributing to a solution of modern problems is being done in the south and that whenever possible, the southern professor seeks escape to the east or west, where education's value is appreciated.

Doctor Gee declares that graduate centers must be developed in the south, having better financial support. Much of this support should be from private sources. In Oklahoma little effort has been made to relieve the state's burden in aiding the university.

Sightseeing tour

A sightseeing tour for which three hours credit in the university will be given will be conducted this summer by the University Extension Division. This tour, by bus, will include some of the southern states, the East and part of southern Canada, lasting forty eight days. Credit will be offered in either geography or journalism feature writing. Mr Leslie Hewes, instructor in geography, will teach cultural and natural aspects of the country through which the group passes and Miss Virginia Carter, Oklahoma City, graduate of the School of Journalism, Missouri University, will conduct classes in feature writing which will be based on interviews and observations during the trip.

Buses will leave June 6, starting their swing through the east by way of the Seminole oil fields, the McAlester coal mines and thence into Arkansas where they will stop at aluminum mines and rice fields. Crossing the Mississippi the students will visit the Mississippi delta.
A not unusual sight at Norman, though one seldom caught by camera, is the picture here shown of a skirmish between a Canadian river sandstorm and a February snowfall.

and New Orleans, from there they will proceed eastward to Tampa, Florida cigar factories.

Daytona beach, Jacksonville, Atlanta, Nashville, tobacco country and cotton mills will be visited by the wandering students before they turn down the Shenandoah valley into Washington, D. C.

The United States Naval Academy at Annapolis; Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York City will be points of interest in the seaboard states.

Following the Hudson river north the tourists will go through West Point, Albany, and turn up the Mohawk valley to Buffalo flour mills and then to Niagara Falls. Here they will cross into Canada on their way to Detroit.

Chicago and the World Fair will climax the tour and Norman will be reached by way of St. Louis and the Ozarks.

Doctor Perry's lectures

Three consecutive lectures by Doctor Chas. M. Perry, head of the department of philosophy, based on observations in the East during the early winter have caused an increase of attendance at the weekly meetings of the Philosophy club.

"An Ideal for the Robot," the opening lecture, analyzed the elements of industrial society and presented the philosophic goal which must control social reform. The social principles governing the machine age were explained.

"Breeding the Brain Trust" gave the function of the university in industrial society.

"Education for Utopia" treated adult education and the use of leisure.

Inflation a cure?

At a meeting of the Wholesale Men's Credit association at the Skirvin hotel in Oklahoma City, Wednesday, February 22, Dean A. B. Adams of the college of business administration made a speech answering the question "Would Inflation Cure the Depression?"

Dean Adams stated that "Only by a policy of non-inflation and readjustment of business on a lower price and value level can we actually cure the depression.

In other words, the big problem confronting us at the present is the liquidation or adjustment of the funded and unfunded debts of business enterprises. Many of our business enterprises are not in a position to pay interest on their funded or bonded debts, to say nothing of the principal, and the prospects are that several of them never will be able to pay the contract interest on the face value of their bonds.

As far as I am able to see, there is little or nothing in the present business situation which would cause one to believe that government paper money inflation would bring into play the real economic stimuli which would produce permanent business recovery. Again, part of the improvement in volume of production and prices brought about by inflation might be made permanent if real wages were raised correspondingly as production is increased so that the consuming public would have a permanent increase in current purchasing power to correspond with the increase in production.

The adoption of bimetallism at the present market ratio of gold and silver actually would lower the intrinsic value of gold per grain because it would lessen the use of gold for currency purposes and thereby would lower the intrinsic value of the gold dollar and the prices consequently would rise to some extent.

In this country we also have those who advocate that we remain technically on the gold basis, but that the government each year coin a limited amount of silver by purchasing the bullion in the market in order to increase the total volume of money in circulation. This policy, in reality, would be another variety of currency inflation—that is, it would be another method of increasing the money in circulation by a constant increase in government credit.

We already have made much progress in removing the excess debts by partial payment and by scaling them down. Excess stocks of goods already are greatly depleted in many industries and the volume of production is now slowly increasing in industry as a whole. We at least have the consolation of knowing that our movement toward business recovery has been made largely on a sound basis thus far.
MINUTES OF DIRECTORS' MEETING OF THE ANDERSON FAMILY (A Washington Corporation)

Pursuant to call and agreement of all of the directors of The Anderson Family, a Washington corporation, the regular semi-annual meeting of the directors of said corporation was held at the general office of said corporation in the Breakfast Nook, 5818 South Sheridan, Tacoma, Washington, on Thursday, the 15th day of December, 1932. All of the directors, namely Claude J. Anderson, '24, president, Ruth Frances Anderson, vice president and general manager, and Shirley Kathleen Anderson, superintendent of the Works, were present.

President Claude announced to the board that there had been several changes effected in the organization and administration of its new superintendent. He thereupon proceeded to review the following:

Removal of operations from 3732 North Thirty-first to 5818 South Sheridan.

Change in the sources of raw materials and supplies. Letting the fuel contract for the winter 1932-1933.

Substitution of ping-pong and poker for golf and boating; substitution of contract for auction.

Inasmuch as these developments were consummated largely due to outside circumstances and in agreement with the present trend, little discussion was offered. By unanimous vote of the directors the several items were approved.

The president then called attention to the 1933 budget. Amid considerable confusion, General Manager Ruth spoke at length reviewing the 1932 budget. She pointed out the practical difficulties of foreseeing the many contingencies which arise. She spoke bitterly of the repairs and replacements called for by the superintendent of the works. Works Superintendent Shirley then gained the floor and pointed out that any growing institution must discard worn out and obsolete equipment, and made a new demand for increased appropriations for footwear and food stuffs. The budget was held over for future consideration.

General Manager Ruth then brought up the question of closer co-operation between departments. She recalled to the attention of the board that a bulletin board had been installed in a prominent place in the general office to facilitate the completion of household tasks. She reported that the board was becoming cluttered up with old items such as:...Put a new belt on vacuum cleaner. ...Replace bulb in attic...Skis need waxing...More kindling for the furnace, please...etc. Prompt performance was promised by the president.

General Manager Ruth then grew sentimental and recalled the first semi-annual meeting of the board held just four years ago. She recalled the many friendships which have favored our venture. Accordingly, in keeping with the spirit of the approaching holiday season, the following resolution was introduced and adopted by unanimous vote of all of the directors:

Whereas the successful operation of The Anderson Family has been due in no small measure to the many kindnesses extended the organization by its friends.

Whereas it is fitting that definite action be taken to express appreciation for such loyal support.

Resolved, that the secretary be ordered to communicate with all friends of the corporation the following:

"In sincere appreciation of your good wishes and loyal friendship the directors of The Anderson Family send you this token of their desire that you may have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

The crisis facing schools

Decreasing funds for the support of schools and increasing enrollment of students seeking an education constitute the dilemma facing schools, President Bizzell declared in a radio speech broadcast over station KVOO at Tulsa February 2. Oklahoma's situation is particularly grave, the president said, in view of the youth of the state and of the educational system; had there been eight or nine more years of prosperity, educational institutions might have been able to adjust themselves to the new situation.

The president referred to an unprecedented feature of the present financial crisis, the tendency to sacrifice educational opportunity for children. This is the first time in the history of the nation that such a situation has existed. "We are thinking more about reducing our taxes tomorrow than we are thinking about educating our children for the future," the president stated. "This is a dangerous state of mind."

Oklahoma educational institutions have been fortunate in one respect, that the same proportion of high school graduates do not attend higher institutions of learning as in many other states. In spite of that, however, the increase in attendance at higher educational institutions has been almost fifty per cent in the past five years, the number of high school students entering Oklahoma colleges being 11,613 in 1926 and 17,000 in 1932.

The men's council

Like its celebrated predecessor, the student council, the men's council lives anything but a quiet life. Following the unprecedented action in asking the state legislature to investigate certain functions of the university, the council found another topic of conversation. This was eligibility.

The entire matter was thrown into the limelight when the faculty eligibility committee held that four members of the council, including the president, vice president and secretary, were ineligible. The ruling was based on the fact that the four men were elected to represent the college of arts and sciences and were actually enrolled in the school of law. These four men were what are called "combined students" i.e. seniors in the college of arts and sciences who are allowed to take a year of work as electives, which electives count for credit in both schools i.e. to finish their work for the A. B. degree and also as the first year of work toward the LL.B. degree. A new election was considered for February 12, to replace the four men, who were: Joe Stamper of Clayton, president, Vincent Dale, of Guyon, vice president, Herman Greenhaw of Hobart, secretary, and Charles Davis of Oklahoma City, member.

The Mens council then requested from the Board of Review established by the student constitution an interpretation of the powers of the eligibility committee to make the above ruling. The Board of Review ruled that under the student constitution the eligibility committee's action was unconstitutional, but specifically stated that it expressed no opinion as to whether that committee might not be given further powers by the president of the university and the administrative council if they should see fit. Following this opinion, the contemplated election was cancelled.

The following is the formal interpretation and opinion handed down by the Board of Review.

Article 12, Section 1, of the Student constitution, designates the undersigned as a board of review in the following language: "Matters of interpretation of this constitution, its amendments and by-laws, shall be referred to a board of review composed of the dean of the law school, the head of the government department and the dean of men."

"An interpretation has been called for on the question of whether or not the eligibility committee has the power to declare students elected to the Mens' council in the spring of 1932 from the college of arts and sciences, ineligible at this time to continue to hold their offices or positions by reasons of the fact that they are taking courses in the school of law, which counts for credit toward graduation in the college of arts and sciences.

The powers, rights, and duties of the eligibility committee in the student constitution are all contained in Article 6 thereof, which says: 'Eligibility for all student offices shall be determined by the faculty eligibility committee in accordance with the following regulations.' Then follows an enumeration of the offices to which this applies; then follows a specific statement 'to be eligible for an office a student must be regularly enrolled for at least 12 hours of residence work,' then a provision that students failing to pass in at least 12 hours of work in any semester shall be ineligible to be candidates for office during the next semester; then follows a special provision for a 10-hour rule for law students instead of 12; then a special provision for an 8-hour rule for the editor and business manager of the student paper; then a prohibition against a person being a candidate for more than two offices at the same time; then a description of how class officers shall be elected; then a limitation that no candidate shall be eligible who has not completed at least one semester's work or received advanced standing to that extent, with a proviso that the article shall not apply to the law school. Then follows a provision against the use of money or advertising, or electioneering; then a specific provision that violations of any of the regulations and provisions of this article shall be punishable by disqualification.

"The above, in substance, constitutes the whole of said Article Six, and constitutes the entire body of powers assigned by this constitution to the faculty eligibility committee.

"Under the well known principle of constitutional interpretation that powers specifically granted shall be held to exclude others not given, we find no power in the eligibility committee under this constitution to prescribe qualifications not contained in said Section Six, the violation of which shall be followed by disqualifying the officer or member. Whether or not additional provisions that are not wise, such for instance as that an officer would be at least 21 years of age, or a resident of the state, or an 'A' student, or should not have violated the social rules of the university, or had an unsatisfactory attendance record, or shall have not taken electives elsewhere than in the school for which he was elected, etc. are here questions with which we are not concerned. We do hold that such additional provisions are not within the power of the eligibility committee to add, but on the other hand such power is specifically given by the constitution to the Mens' council under Article Three, Section Five of the constitution which reads as follows: 'the Mens' council shall have power to make by-laws and pass resolutions to carry out the provisions of this constitution, subject to rejection by the student association under the power of the referendum and recall.'

We specifically do not hold or wish to be construed as saying that the eligibility com-

Produced entirely under the "child-doing" theory, Janice Meredith, a Revolutionary romantic novel, was staged Tuesday evening, February 14 in the Engineering auditorium by university high school students. These young people, under supervision of apprentice teachers and Mrs Katharyn Buchanan, instructor in school supervision, read the novel, wrote the play, designed their costumes, made them, planned production and interpreted and acted the piece. The responsibility of the apprentice teachers and their sponsor lay only in trying the project up with definite lessons in English literature, composition, design, etc. The children, themselves, were the makers of the drama.

Tennyson's The Falcon was dramatized over WNAD Tuesday night, February 14 by Josephine Landstidd and Robert Latting, both of Tulsa, Evelyn Gray, Ponca City, and Billy Longmire, Sapulpa.

The reverend Mr William Lindsay Young, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, who is in charge of university work of the board of Christian education of the Presbyterian church, was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of Presbyterian Students Synod in Norman, December 15. Mr Young was director of the school of religion at the University of Montana before joining the board of Christian education staff.

Sylvia Mills, Roumanian student, says that life in the United States college is quite different from that of the student in her native country. Married couples going to college are a novelty to her. Miss Mills speaks five languages fluently.

Dr. Henry D. Rinsland, associate professor of education, and Miss Hedwig Schaefer, assistant professor of home economics, were speakers for the Cleveland county teachers' association's annual meeting in Norman January 20. Sula Sultsman, university student, entertained the group with a humorous hospital skit.

WNAD miniature symphony orchestra left Wednesday, February 15, on a tour which included high schools at Edmond, Perry, Ponca City, Fairfax, Pawhuska, Bartlesville and Collinsville. Vocal soloists for the concerts were Miriam Dearth, Bartlesville, and Louise Thompson, Hobart; Max Gladstrap, Ardmore, gave special entertainment features.

WNAD fans will be glad to hear of a new feature being added to University radio programs. Each Thursday night during the remainder of the school year Phi Alpha Delta, honorary law fraternity, will broadcast a short skit on humorous happenings in a law office. Roles in the plays will be Judge Littleton, played by Milton W. Hardy, Tulsa; Halibut Hanks, the dumb law clerk, by Leslie Paine, Carnegie; the town politician, by Barney Burns, Carlsbad, New Mexico; a Negro client, by Christensen; and a farmer by Prentice Lackey, Blanchard. Five senior home economics students are being given practical experience at home economics practice house during the first half of this semester, under the direction of Miss Helen H. Hamill, assistant professor of home economics. The seniors are Joyce F. Harris, Drummond; Mary Louise Stokes, Oklahoma City; Frances K. Fugate, Binger; Pauline H. Willis Stovall, assistant professor of geology, and Claude Johnston, Bethaven, North Carolina, who found the whale stranded on a Florida gulf beach last summer, have assembled the specimen.

The plans for annual tours of Mexico by the extension division of the university and directed by Todd Downing, instructor in Spanish, have been completed. This year there will be three divisions of the tours. The first group will leave Norman on June 28 and the tour will extend over a period of 55 days, permitting those who wish to attend the 7-weeks summer school conducted by the University of Oklahoma, to do so. The second and third groups will leave Norman June 28 and August 2, respectively, each tour extended over a 22-day period.

Mary Miller, Hartshorne, and Nan Estelle Hunter, Oklahoma City, won the fourth annual debate between the women teams of the university and Oklahoma A. and M. college February 2. The debate was broadcast over WNAD, university radio station. The question was: "Resolved that at least one half of all state and local revenue should be derived from sources other than tangible property." Judges phoned in their decisions after listening to the debate over the radio.

Jean's Teepee Grill, owned by Jean McCarty, is to open in March.

After ringing the doorbell of the Kappa house for some minutes and evoking no response, Miss Pound finally ventured into the house. She tried the doorbell once again to see if it would work. It did. The sound could be heard over the house. From upstairs came the sound of laughter of Kappas. Enjoying the situation immensely, Most Famous Kappa Pound inspected the Kappa house lower floor. She liked it. As for the members, her report to Oklahoma will have to be a blank.

Her visit to the Kappa house evoked a chuckle from Miss Pound. In the meantime, the reception committee of Kappa Kappa Gamma no doubt will begin to re-memorize the names of celebrated members.

SEVENTY-FOUR "A" STUDENTS

Seventy-four students made a "straight-A" average last semester. This was an unusually large number compared with previous semester averages. The honor students are:

John L. Beauchamp, Aubrey N. Bileyu, Marcus Cohn, Lorraine B. Ketchum and Earl Sneed, all of Tulsa; Beulah Lucinda Allender, Elk City; William Carr Bednar, Seymour B. Ingerson and Wilma Jo Miller, all of Chickasha; Margarette Bellah, Hollis; Charles C. Bush, jr., Prague; Martha Davis, Guthrie; Paul Charles Fine, Idabel; Donald and a committee composed of John Swinson, Ivan Muddrow; both of Norman, and Hugh Owens, Oklahoma City, was named to suggest plans for the future activity of the organization.

All members and pledges to the former organization automatically become members of the new group and Willis Blackwell; ... intramural sports a knee injury in the first half and had to be removed. That victory clinched the title for Dr. F. C. "Phog" Allen's Jayhawks.

However the next night at Lincoln, Nebraska, the Sooners drove much in the same manner they had in the home games all year, and trimmed the Huskers, 38 to 27.

Oklahoma had a very successful season, everything considered. They won two road games this year without the important center tip, no mean feat. They won all their home games, closing the season here against the Oklahoma Aggies, here, defeating the Stillwater team, 43 to 23. Oklahoma has defeated every Big Six conference team at Norman for the past two years. Oklahoma's last home defeat to a Big Six opponent occurred back in 1931 when Missouri turned the trick, with its delayed stall, 27 to 17.

Beck, Anderson and Jude Potts, the latter being deprived of a chance to play against Kansas and Nebraska because he twisted his knee in the Oklahoma Aggie fray after playing a strong defensive game and bagging two pretty baskets from the corner, are the graduating members of the Oklahoma team.

Prospects for next year are good for the reason that the team will have more height not only at center, but all over the court. Seniors next year will be Eryl Bros, Harold LeCrone, Percy Main and Howard Brockman. Browning, the flashy sophomore, also will return. Clifton Shearer, sophomore center sensation of Oklahoma's last championship team, the 1929 aggregation, may also enter school next fall and will have two more years of competition. He has participated in spring football practice this year.

The team will draw some pretty fair freshmen players. Donald Hayes, Charley Hayes, "Spike" Leonard, Wayne LeCrone, Raymond "Pet" Meyer, Jerome "Shocky" Needy, Kenneth Wallace and Vic Priebie are perhaps the best ones. Leonard is a former Phillips university and Oklahoma City Booster player, and has one more year of college competition. He and Shearer are expected to bolster the team at center.
