Duncan, Enid, Ardmore, Pauls Valley, Tulsa, Wes-oka, Seminole and Oklahoma City.

The SOONER MAGAZINE came out as usual and on time.

Numerous meetings were held with the staff and others on plans for 1950-51. Voted twice.

Your alumni headquarters is a busy and fascinating place. Whenever you are on the campus, come by and see us. We are always glad to see a Sooner.

Brandt...

reality. Just as President Bizzell had stood for an adequate appropriation for the library building, so I in turn made sacrifices in the building program to insure an adequate appropriation for the Institute. This was made by the Legislature but the war prevented the construction of the building until after I had left the campus.

As one who had lived under very adverse circumstances during the war years at the University, I was determined that whatever else I accomplished, I would not leave the campus without laying an adequate for dormitories. This had also been a cherished ambition of President Bizzell but I had the fortune that townpeople, who had consistently blocked dormitory plans, were satisfied with naval personnel. With the splendid aid of such men as Capt. John F. Donelson, Dean Arthur B.
Adams, Walter Kraft, Savoie Lottinville, we secured a real beginning which I am happy to see President Cross carrying forward so magnificently.

It had been my aim to have all freshmen housed in dormitories, under a house plan, by which they would receive tutorial help in learning study habits.
Several such houses were instituted, like Franklin House, but of course, the changing character of the student body as a result of the war caused the program to be abandoned. I hope some day the plan will be revived. The mortality among freshmen students is entirely too high and many of them can be saved under such a system.

Both President Brooks and President Bizzell had a clear idea of what the University (i.e., a center of research) of Oklahoma should be. President Brooks had to content himself with pioneering. President Bizzell in his inaugural called on the faculty to reach out toward the real University and his constant aim was toward that end. Yet, when he tried early in his administration to divide the undergraduate program into lower and an upper division level, as had recently been done at the University of Illinois, he found adamant resistance in the administrative council, he told me. It was because of his experience that I was summary in the way in which the University College was introduced.

On the larger scope, however, because of the work already done, I was able to give increasing rewards for research, such as the Research pro-fessorships. I'm delighted that this plan has been extended to the great teachers of the University as well; too often we worship research to the exclusion of the good teacher whose role is moulding fine minds among undergraduates. President Cross, a wonderful teacher as well as scholar, is crystalizing the dreams and ambitions of his predecessors and adding to them his own rich contributions.

This is as it should be. A university is basically a conservative institution. Had I planned to spend the rest of my life as the president of the University, I would have sharply altered the tempo of reforms. On the other hand, had I done so, the danger would have been that most reforms would have been compromised in non-existence. My motives were through those of a loyal and devoted graduate to the University of Oklahoma who was impatient that the University take its rightful place as a leader in education, an ambition not unique with me but one that had been shared by my two immediate predecessors.

Perhaps I would have made no comment at all had not an able historian ascribed motives to me which I alone could know.
