While in school Mr. Burns was on the editorial staff of the "Sooner yearbook and the "Whirlwind." Since leaving school he has worked as supervisor for the Pictorial Review company and various publishing companies, and as supervisor of retail stores for Goodrich Tire and Rubber Company, with offices in Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

Results of burning of woodlands have been analyzed by Dr. Elbert L. Little, Jr., 27as, 32ma, for the Oklahoma Forest Service. Experiments conducted since 1930 with Dr. Charles E. Olmstead, also of the Forest Service, have shown that the practice of burning woodlands to "get rid of weeds" as is customary in parts of Oklahoma actually only gets rid of the grass and lets weeds develop more freely. It was found that summer fires are much more destructive than spring fires, but that both kinds do irreparable damage to grass and young trees. It was found that areas burned over lost soil rapidly. An unburned plot had a covering of dead leaves which absorbed moisture and held it there.

Sarah Katherine Davis, 27ex, is now Mrs. E. H. Miller, of Desert Center, Calif. Her husband is an engineer on the Colorado River Aqueduct project.

Following our concert Friday night at Tuscaloosa at the University of Alabama.

of Pi Kappa Alpha gave a large and formal reception for us at the chapter house, a beautiful evening. The boys of the Tuscaloosa chapter planed a similar reception and I had accepted by telegram from New York; for the past month the writer has been courting the opinions of Germans and Italians, not only their attitudes with regard to their leaders and their objectives, but with regard to the possibility of permanent peace in Europe. Each question is amabbly answered with either a veiled reference to French militarism, Jewish propaganda, or the injustice of the treaty of Versailles. This wound, nurtured and led by Hitler, is the basis of all German political tactics.

Mrs. Eleanor Gist Lockett, ’31aw, Box 508, Tulsa.

As Merl and I were lunching at Arnaud’s Restaurant in New Orleans we ran across Josh Lockett, ’31aw; and A. P. Van Meter, ’30ex.

In Norman from a University law school graduate traveling to Europe.

Your writer spent the night at a small village on the Rhone, Schechenburg, about 12 miles from Heidelberg. About 9 p. m. the village suddenly became dark and upon going to the window, the writer saw a display of powerful searchlights, piercing the night sky for the airplane roaring over the city. It was a German plane. An official explained to me that the German plane was affording the anti-aircraft facilities some practice in preparation for the French. It is strange, even pathetic, that a people who have no intellectual superiors in Europe, should be so completely embarrassed in the dogmas of fear and hatred. Not only is this emphasized in their militarism, but in every tenant advocated by the Nazi regime.
