possible in our future studies. How soon we will need to have this kind of information in making sound decisions about the problems of admissions is, of course, not yet known. It is our hope that when the time does come we will know the facts and will be able to act in the light of these facts so that the University of Oklahoma can continue to serve the greatest number of people for the greatest common good.

Before our study ends we will likely be sending you a questionnaire, because we no doubt will need to have information about those who graduated which we do not have at present. If and when you do hear from us, you may be sure that a prompt answer will be of great help to us and eventually to many future students.
