Mother Was a Freshman

25 Years Ago

If some of the daughters ever wondered whether their mother’s acted 25 years ago, they should be able to find the answer in the All American Co-Ed Eleven as presented in the 1924 Sooner yearbook.

“Leaky, end, is fast and aggressive, never misses anything. Interference her main line. Kincaid as running mate is rangey and covers lots of territory. Very hard to get around.

“Campbell light for tackle but selected because of uncanny ability to locate and hold man. Never lets one slip through her hand. Pollard finished the game early in season, but made one sure tackle.

“Both Taylor and Brown have weight behind attack, so furnish guard material. Due to long walks Brown has world of endurance.

“Billingeley easily toppled all competition for center. True as an arrow in passing, a veteran of four seasons, remains center of attraction. . . .

“Fast, Captain, attracted international fame as a freshman. Although line defense is poor, her side stepping ability learned at numerous student councils, makes her an elusive half. Dansby, as left half, is fastest man of squad. Does not keep training hours very well.

“Goodson very active at Full despite weight. Represents husky type of player who is impossible to stop when once started.”

(Ed’s Note: The 11th member selected but not described was Clark. First names were omitted in original, but due to outstanding play, it is believed that most members of the Class of ’24 will recognize the players without a program.)

Youth Was On a Fling

20 Years Ago

Ads in the '29 Sooners Magazine were plugging a humor magazine with the suggestion, “Recall the many thrilling pranks and escapades during your hectic days on the Sooner Campus. OKLAHOMA WHIRLWIND, Snappy, Artistic, Zesty, Humorous.” It was probably complete with pin-up pictures of Clara Bow and Lillian Gish.

The Sooner’s sports pages had some rather inflammatory remarks to make about a flashy football and basketball star—Bruce Drake, '29ba. Bruce has since imparted some of his flashiness to the Oklahoma basketball team which he coaches.

An article in the '29 edition boasted of one Emmet Eben Heflin, Jr., '32ba. “He has landed an enviable place in New York theatrical work. He recently stepped into the leading character part in Channing Pollock’s latest stage success, ‘Mr. Money-penny,’ in New York City.” Now known as Van Heflin, he’s one of the top stars on MGM’s payroll in Hollywood.

Who is the greatest all-around athlete in America today? I believe he is Tom Churchill and the records bear out the belief,” wrote Frank L. Dennis in the '39 issue. “He recently stepped into the leading character part in Channing Pollock’s latest stage success, ‘Mr. Money-penny,’ in New York City.” Now known as Van Heflin, he’s one of the top stars on MGM’s payroll in Hollywood.
