Sports Continued

What does a pole-vaulter do when he hits a slump? That's when Carroll looks up his coach. "Jake can take one look and tell you what you're doing wrong," says Carroll, "Also, he knows how to relax you by coming in there with a wisecrack."

"Pole-vaulting is all mental," Jacobs told Carroll when the latter was having a bad week last winter. "If a fellow can't go 14 feet, he hasn't got good mentality."

Starting from that witticism, Carroll began the three-week climb that was culminated by his record indoor sail of 14-1 a month ago in the Central Collegiate indoor meet at East Lansing, Michigan, believed the top indoor jump for an American collegian this year.

Oklahoma Leads All Sports

Finishing no lower than third in any sport, Oklahoma leads the Big Seven conference all sports table for the school year 1948-49 with six of the loop's ten recognized sports finished.

The Sooners had a low of 11½, followed by Nebraska 17½, Kansas and Missouri 26 each, Iowa State 26½, Colorado 27 and Kansas State 33½.

But Oklahoma's superior balance told. Coach Bud Wilkinson's Sooner football team won the championship. Coach Bruce Drake's track tied for the basketball crown. Coach John Jacobs' cross-country team, Coach Port Robertson's wrestling team and Coach Joe Glander's swim squad all picked off runner-up honors in their sports and Jacobs' indoor track squad was third.

Emphasizing every sport on the calendar, Oklahoma has won the Big Seven all sports championship 13 times to Nebraska's three, Iowa State's three, Kansas one, Missouri one. Oklahoma, Nebraska, Iowa State and Colorado participated in every sport officially recognized by the conference. Kansas has no wrestling, Kansas State no swimming, while Missouri has neither a wrestling nor swimming team.

With golf, tennis, baseball and outdoor track still to be heard from, here's the Big Seven all sports table for 1948-49:
