For 47 years we have lent money and through its more than forty-seven years The First National has demonstrated both the ability to serve this community and the readiness to serve. The First National continues to make loans, just as it always has done, in good times and bad, in 1889 and in every year thereafter. The demand for commercial bank credit is increasing now because of renewed business activity. Still, we find our ratio of loans to total resources is such that ample funds are available for further lending. We seek the kind of loans which will help an individual, a business, an industry and the community to profitable activity. If you can use credit in that way you will find loan officers of The First National glad of an opportunity to discuss your need with you.
