Riding the Sooner Range
By Tead Baird

AND speaking of schools, a few of the students have been in their home towns in the past month, and they are back with stories of what a swell job the alumni association is doing. As usual, they have had to pay the entrance fee but it is well worth it to be able to meet the people we have known for so many years.

That banker across the desk with the steel glass eye is no other than the financial wizard of McClain County, C. E. Ellinger. He has been in town since last week and is at work on some of the large ranches in the area.

The gentleman on the inside of the window as I peered at the stack of mail from the postoffice at Sulphur was Postmaster C. E. Fair, 17ex. C. E. has held the position as postmaster at Sulphur for several years after a few thirty or forty years of active work as superintendent in various educational institutions in the county. He has had many important meetings and has worked hard.

While not actively supervising the school system at Pryor, Dan is guiding the destiny of a large ranch some two miles out of Pryor that is one of the best equipped ranches in this section of the country. MRS. BAKER, '26ma, as well as MRS. CLARICE BAKER BALDWIN, the other members of the Baldwin household, have enjoyed work on the University campus...

... That banker across the desk with the steel glass eye is no other than the financial wizard of McClain County, C. E. Ellinger, 26ex.

... And what is this? Am I bumping into the Alumni Association office?.. It seems like some of the "old days" when I was at the University last year.

Standing on the outside of the window as we peered at the stack of mail from the postoffice at Sulphur was Postmaster C. E. Fair, 17ex. C. E. has held the position as postmaster at Sulphur for several years after some thirty or forty years of active work as superintendent in various educational institutions in the county. One had lost; the other had won.

... Swinging on through "Little Dixie," we spent a pleasant hour's work with R. L. BURTON, superintendent of schools at Idol who is the former MIRIAM ANTHONY, '26, in checking the records of the various schools in the county. He had been superintendent for three or four years. But here, three minutes later, due to Sooner loyalty, he entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary.

FRANK WATSON, '25law, federal district attorney from the Muskogee office. These two battling legal Sooners had just opposed each other in a most important federal law case in the Muskogee County district court.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the sacred sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.

... And we had to stop two times to talk with some of the "old timers" before we arrived at our destination.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.

... And we had to stop two times to talk with some of the "old timers" before we arrived at our destination.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.

... And we had to stop two times to talk with some of the "old timers" before we arrived at our destination.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.

... And we had to stop two times to talk with some of the "old timers" before we arrived at our destination.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.

... And we had to stop two times to talk with some of the "old timers" before we arrived at our destination.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.

... And we had to stop two times to talk with some of the "old timers" before we arrived at our destination.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.

... And we had to stop two times to talk with some of the "old timers" before we arrived at our destination.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.

... And we had to stop two times to talk with some of the "old timers" before we arrived at our destination.

... And breezing through the lobby before we entered the Sacred Sanctorum of the Rotary, I was surprised to see LEWIS R. B. THOMPSON, '27law, prominent young Oklahoma City attorney. Also, another early morning caller at the Biltmore is Mr. E. W. ROBERTSON, '17law, now secretary to the State Board of Education, who is here as another Rotary delegate from his home group.