ROY CLIFTON JENKINS, '31 bus., at the age of twenty four is one of the eight college district supervisors in the United States of the Real Silk Hosiery Mills of Indianapolis. He has charge of the college sales of all the middle-western states, including Oklahoma. His success has been little short of phenomenal; he has gone through every phase of Real Silk selling training, including college representative, team organizer, college organizer and in his senior year, student supervisor. On graduation he became state supervisor. The second year out of school is the testing year—one either advances or he drops out. Mr Jenkins was made a district supervisor. He is organizing for Real Silk selling in Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska. His task is to select through deans and college officials young men and women who have the requisites to succeed, for his training is the finest sort to fit him for executive work. Once a month Mr Jenkins visits the mills. Having helped himself through college, Mr Jenkins is now helping hundreds of other boys and girls not only to get their education but to train themselves for success later.

PAUL LANIER FAHRNEY, '20 chem. eng., of San Francisco, California, is the general sales manager of the American Bitumuls Company, with headquarters in San Francisco. His company manufactures asphalt emulsions for highway construction purposes. After serving in the O. T. C. at Camp Zachary Taylor, Mr Fahrney left electrical engineering in which he had been enrolled in the university for chemical; he worked his way through school by being plant superintendent for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. After graduation he became assistant to the chief chemist for the Peet Brothers Soap Company, and later entered the research laboratory of the Standard Oil Company of California. He became chief of the laboratory and later handled asphalt sales for the company in Oregon. In May, 1929 Mr Fahrney became district manager of the American Bitumuls Company of Baltimore. The company is a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company. Mr Fahrney later became the general manager. He is a member of Sigma Nu and Alpha Chi Sigma fraternities and various technical societies. Mrs Fahrney is a graduate of the University of California.

LEON HIRSCH, '22 law, of Oklahoma City, received his law degree when nineteen years old and had to wait to be admitted to practice. He is said to be the youngest man ever named an assistant attorney general of Oklahoma, having been named a special assistant in April, 1923 in the federal trial of J. C. Walton versus the house of representatives. The twenty-year old lawyer brilliantly distinguished himself and was given a regular appointment as assistant attorney general July 1, 1923. During one of the impeachment trials Mr Hirsch went seventy two hours without sleep. He retired from the attorney general's office in 1926. Most recent of his services came when he was employed by Governor Murray as special attorney to prosecute rate reduction on the part of the Oklahoma Natural Gas Corporation. He is associated with his father and former Governor Charles N. Haskell in law practice in Oklahoma City. His wife is the former Selma Born, a graduate of Washington university. They were married in 1929.
