Forty-Five Years After

By Dr. John T. Heffley, ’01ba, ’35ed
Assistant Professor of Education
University of Oklahoma

Among the classes planning for reunions at the time of the University’s commencement in April of 1901, the class of 1901 enjoys the distinction of being the earliest class of this year’s reunion groups. When you think in terms of the present, you may be surprised to learn that this year 1901 goes back nearly a half century—45 years to be exact—and that is practically ancient history so far as the University is concerned.

Twenty-one names constitute the roster of this class. In the group, one was awarded a Master’s degree—the first Master’s degree earned in the University of Oklahoma. Five were given Bachelor’s degrees, and fifteen were pharmacy graduates. The pharmacy students received certificates and diplomas for the completion of two years of work and were entitled to the distinction of registered pharmacists in Oklahoma.

At that time the School of Pharmacy had not been developed into a four years course. In this same 1901 class is listed the first woman student to receive a college degree from the University. At the present time, this class of twenty-one, nine are deceased, five live in Oklahoma, two in Norman, and the addresses of two are not known.

If anyone is unable to visualize the changes in the University personnel in the past 40 years, it may be said that only one member of the regular faculty in 1901, an instructor, assistant, tutor, engineer, junior or caretaker employed at that time, is now actively connected with the University. However, four members of the 1901 faculty still reside in Norman, and it is hoped that all of these may be present at the reunion. One was a member of the initial University faculty in 1893, and the first territorial legislature. Also one member of the class of 1901 was a student body member in 1893.

Members of the class of 1901 to whom invitations are being sent to participate in the reunion festivities this spring are Paul L. White, ’01ba, Roll Call; Jan Thomas, ’39, War Records; Mrs. Mary Turnbull, ’00ba, Alumni Records, and Lula Antonelli, ’41, Mailing.

North Oval Reconversion

By Dr. Frank A. Balvey, ’11ba, ’18ma
Director of Adult Education
University of Oklahoma

The north oval is having its face lifted again. Plowed and reset in Bermuda, and rearranged shrub, hedges, and flowers, it will have a somewhat changed appearance when you attend the reunions this spring. Just north of the spoonholder the transplanted flagpole stands at the intersection of three new walks.

Yes, this venerable structure still stands, as does its companion, the 06 stone. And stand they must. No longer protected by classroom armed with shotguns, as when once warring, they now have the protection of college tradition. Gone is the wane and carnary paint, class colors of 1911, with which the spoonholder was adorned the night after being finished by the mighty men of nineteen-ten. But the memories of those hectic days when classes clashed still abide.

The flagpole is no longer greased, climbed, bent, or lassoed by rival classmen, for the "scrap" which characterized a smaller school are but memories. During the recent war this pole held aloft the government pennant which characterized O. U. students as among those doing their part in the war effort.

Yet, a new pole still stands, pe-et still lives and, with other honor societies, has a public imitation on the oval. But the old peace pipe imitation, held in front of the Carnegie Library (now Education Building) while daily chapel was going on—is discontinued. So is the chapel period. No available hall would permit the Peace Pipe initiation, held in front of the Carnegie Library, when classes clashed.

In the Memorial Union Building you may again read the names of those who participated in World War I. But the names of the veterans of World War II are legion. Long, too, is the list of those who have made the supreme sacrifice since the news of Pearl Harbor jolted us out of our routine.

Yes, time has made the north oval look a bit different, as it may have done you and some schoolmates of the yearsters whom you will meet here in May. Some of them will have come to witness the graduation of their sons and daughters.

Many old landmarks are gone, as are many of our college customs. Come back to Norman and let us talk about the people and things and ways that were. And then, together, let us be glad for those that are.

The Cover

Sooner Magazine presents (April issue) Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLaren, recently returned to his home in Oklahoma City after commanding the 19th Corps in the European theater of operations. To the General’s immediate left is Col. Hal L. Mcllworfi Jr. (28bns), who recently returned to his Norman business after four and one-half years’ service with the famous 95th "Thunderbird" Division in the European theater. Colonel Muldrow is checking war casualty records with General McLaren and assisting the General in checking material on O. U.’s war casualties. General McLaren will be the principal speaker Sunday afternoon, May 5, at 4 o’clock in the Field House, University of Oklahoma, in the coming Baccalaureate-Memorial services being directed by the University at that time to its war dead.
