JANUARY, 1950

Now, western magazines have started reprinting them as models.

Oddly enough, Harris doesn't have much time to write now. His students follow him home of evenings, and what scribbling he does must be done in the early morning hours. However, he has found time to write a book, "The Basic Formulas of Fiction." Along with Campbell's manuals on writing, it has become another guide for struggling students from 18 to 70.

Like Campbell, Harris can tell his students a thing or two. There's a season of Cherokee Indian blood in him. He knows his Injuns, his cowboys and badmen, for he's seen a few.

He has edited oil journals, worked as a "lease hound" and amateur geologist. He has seen boom towns where Texas Rangers, for lack of a jail, handcuffed their men to convenient trees. There were other towns, too, that "had their men for breakfast." Now it all adds up to experiences he can pass on to students sweating over a plot or action story, or something more sophisticated for the Post or Atlantic Monthly. The field is open for good writers.

As one student put it, "If Texans had this writing school, they'd look you in the eye and claim it's the best in the country—or none."

ALUMNI DEVELOPMENT FUND

$10.99--An Average Contribution

How much is an average gift to the Alumni Development Fund? That's a question many would-be contributors have been asking and here's the answer. For the period from July 1, 1949, to January 10, 1950, the average contribution was $10.99.

A total of $3,244.75 was received during that period from 296 friends of the University. Fund Field Representative Guy Brown, '42b, '48ma, said these gifts ranged from $1 to $300.

Anyone who has considered a gift but didn't want to put money into a fund that didn't accomplish anything would have
