

Leroy, Kan. Widowed after the birth of ten children, she founded the Arbeka trading post and postoffice in Seminole county. There she reared her family, finding time also to take part in tribal affairs.

In 1910 she went to Old Mexico to seek possession of a tract of land ceded by the Mexican government to Wildcat, a Seminole warrior, for his gallant defense of the people of Sonora during an outbreak in 1840. Too much time had elapsed, however, and she was unsuccessful in her mission.

In 1914 she went to Florida as a missionary in the Everglades.

Funeral services will be held here Sunday afternoon.
