tly, the other scalped alive and burned over a result of this war movement will be that the frieparate themselves from the Hostile ones, and the latter ver to the military, and probably no mercy extended to them, will be annihilated, then those who have long wanted to become zed and settle down to a better life will be removed from the fear of themselves and will be able to do more after the manner of the whites, - send their children to school etc.

I attended a meeting with the Guardelupes (Warloopis) band of Caddos last First-day and (do not be alarmed) and was enabled to talk to them to some length. They said that some things I had told them was new to them, that they had never heard it before, but as it corresponded with a secret feeling in the eir own hearts they believed it was true, and should think deeply of it. There were over 100 Indians present old and young, male and female who were very attentive and thoughtful. I believe that these Caddoes are now ripe for the reception of the good seed of the kingdom if a good sower were among them to sow it. My sheet is about full and I can give no farther satisfaction as to the time of my getting started for home, and yet I cannot persuade myself that the time is far distant, or that I shall not be with you soon. So with my love to you all I bid you farewell. Be of good cheer, and keep heart. Again farewell.

The following is all letter from the Shearon girls, to Lucinda Battey, after their safe arrival home.

Thee has no doubt long before this, heard of our abrupt departure from Ft. Sill and also the cause, through thy husband, though we are strangers to thee in name, yet we feel as if by knowing thy husband, that we were friends of thine. And it to acknowledge to thee the debt of gratitude we owe thy husband for his kind and fatherly advise, given us when at the risk of the Agents displeasure, as well as his life, from the hands of those he so zealously labors for, that we address thee. Had it not been for his timely counsel, I dread to think of what our fate in all probability, would have been.

We feel that our indebtedness to him will never be cancelled.

Thy husband I presume gave the full particulars, so tis not necessary for me to dwell upon them, if what we have written, will enable thee to know the debt of gratitude we owe him, we will feel that we have only done a small act compared to what we owe.

Very respectfully Hattie and Emma Shearon Wichita Kansas
