

got up and he said he would interpret the speech that Sitting Bull made. Then he started in telling how the Sioux had scouts out on all the hills & when Custer & his men came over how Sitting Bull rushed the Sioux forward & he killed Custer. When thinking of that day now, it was all very dramatic, but at that time, Truth meant more to me than all the drama. So I had to smile at this white man's lies.

Sitting Bull's wife who was with him at the time noticed my smile. It was she who held my hand when I only meant to shake hands and go. It was not considered right for a young boy & girl at that time to ask questions or mix with the older people.

But when she asked me who was my father and mother I answered. Then she discovered that we were related. She told her husband and he told me to tell this white man that he wanted me to go to their hotel with them. Now remember this white man who had these Indian people so far from home did not know one word of their language.
