

I could have told Sitting Bull at that time just what this man was saying about him, but I knew it would make trouble, as we all knew at home that Sitting Bull was no where near when Custer was killed. So to keep peace I kept my mouth closed only when Sitting Bull told me he was on the way to Washington, I told him he had passed there already. Then he told me to tell the white man they wanted to go home. The white man told me to tell Sitting Bull they only had 3 or 4 more cities to visit then he would take him and his people home.

Now as far as any of these people getting money on this trip I know nothing about, but I do not believe that any of them got a cent. Because if Sitting Bull had been getting money he would not have been in a hurry to get home. The only thing that was in his mind was that this white man was taking him & his party to Washington to introduce them to the Great white father.

McLaughlin is the agent who sent the police out to bring Sitting Bull in, dead or alive. That was his orders and the Indian police
