Counting coup on an enemy ^{four times} was simply a method by which the warriors showed ^{in a contest with} the victors over their enemies -

What was the name of the white man Yugal Kiyotake- Sitting with Upraised Hands, mentioned in the story by Old Bull? I mean the white man who was said to have lived with SB, and afterward led a party of white men who killed some of SBull's people in 77. Don't know.

Do you know when McL promised the police pensions in case they were killed in fighting SB? Don't know - though the police - survivors - often talked about promises made to them in the way of pensions or some kind of recognition for their action with the Ghost Dancers.

About 1896. Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota introduced a bill relative to pensioning these Indian Police but ~~it~~ ^{it} failed through some reason unknown.

Ex. Commissioner of Indian Affairs. C. H. Burke, when in Congress, was repeatedly asked to do something for these police but he never did anything toward it. ^{nearly 40 years afterward - after McLoughlin had passed away} Senator Lynn De Haven of North Dakota succeeded getting pensions for the widows and survivors - very few left.
