and so on, making in all seven (7) stripes of yellow (6 sticks each) and seven (7) stripes of red (of six sticks each) ending in a blue stick - all the reds and yellow stripes, separated by one blue stick - making 15 blue sticks in all.

Fastened on the first stick of the first red stripe (from the top) hang three green tassels - one in the center - the two on the sides each about 2 inches in from the edge of the mat & inside the sinus. Immediately below these (perpendicularly) hang three from the second stick of the 3d Red Stripe; and a third trio of tassels from the third stick of the fifth Red Stripe (from the top) these tassels - nine in number - are all identically alike. Each consists of a strip of hide (very thin) which has been split into two parts (equal) about seven inches long - these 2 strips are each wrapped with some sort of grass or quill painted green (spirally) from them depend (in each case) a small deer ^{antelope} hoof (two upwards) which has been pierced to allow the thong or strip of hide passage. Beneath the hoof - and
