Dear friend:

I am going to try to come and see you this summer. I am always thinking of my friends in the North, and you know I am always glad to hear from you. So I am sending you a stamped envelope, asking you to answer me, and tell me where you will be next summer.

Now I am going to ask you a question. I hope you will answer it and send the answer to me as soon as you can. (If you can give me the answer soon, and tell me what I want to know, I will send you a dollar) A friend of mine wants this information, (and he is willing to pay that much for it) Of course, if you don't know the answer, he will not pay) But he wants to truth. And I shall thank you, if you will do this right away.

I send you my very best wishes, my friend, to you and all your relatives.

Your friend,

W.S.CAMPBELL
