Editor Fr. journal:

Dear Sir. -

In the Boston Pilot's issue of the 5th of Aug. last, I read an article under the following heading: "The Indian that was struck by a Soldier." It says: "Sitting B. lived for several years at Ft. Rice on Mo. River & was known as a 'Blanket Indian, etc.' One day a soldier struck S. B. a blow. That was the blow in whose train has followed a long list of heroic deeds and which has shaped the Indian policy
