

especially the older members of the Tribe were waiting very anxiously for the return of the hunters. The camp crier was on deck to make special announcements which the hunters decide to make. Sitting Bull seeing the starving old timers called the crier who made an announcement to the effect that the meat from one buffalo brought back by Sitting Bull, was donated to the five oldest squaws in the camp who were in great distress. No sooner announced then five old ladies were brought and it was needless to say that they were sent away glad.

The crier again announced that Sitting Bull further donates the meat of another buffalo brought back by Sitting Bull to the five oldest men in the camp, who were suffering for want of meat. Five very old men ran up to Sitting Bull, thanked him and sang-praising him for his greatness of heart toward the aged.
