Sometimes a great leader finds his own men against him. Then, sometimes, he will tell them that he is going to quit, if they do not obey him. Then they decide that they cannot get along without him, and he is stronger than ever. Did you ever hear any story about Sitting Bull like this? When? Where? Who was there? What was said and done?

None - Many years ago Sitting Bull stood on the bank of Grand River and said to his people.
"I was born near where I am standing now - I want you to hold these grounds; I want you to follow me; I want you to pledge yourselves to what I ask of you."

It was near this spot where Sitting Bull built his log cabin and where he was murdered. The Policemen did not kill Sitting Bull - they murdered him in cold blood, because he was not armed. You might omit some of my wording - it is only my personal opinion.
