Dear Captain Campbell

Herewith a copy of the page proof of my new book "Forest Bankruptcy in America". I have labored for three years to bring this material up to date and to make it readily understandable to the man on the street, also I've tried to make the latter realize he had a part to play in a real public service.

I think I know you well enough to depend on your cooperation in focussing public attention on the main features of the book. Please give me a brief review - a few paragraphs each with the real punch of your usual forceful style. Of course use your own judgment as to the length of the review. It seems to me about a hundred words should be sufficient.

Since a large majority of our people rarely read anything but headlines and let other people do their thinking for them, it is indeed a task worthy of your best effort to shock them out of their usual complacency enough to get them to ask a few questions.

We are now at the crossroads as far as a national forest policy is concerned, and this is just the time for a well directed attack on forest devastation.

I shall appreciate an early reply as the publisher will issue the book shortly after your review is received.

You may be sure your cooperation will be appreciated.

Very sincerely yours
George B. Clary
