Dear Walter:

Your letter was amazingly interesting as <sup>ALWAYS</sup> ~~was~~. I was not aware of the great feeling against the Sioux in South Dakota. It seems to me that ~~is~~ is about time that some persons realize what an immense tourist attraction the Sioux could be and begin treating them better. They are human beings after all. Every ~~kind~~ in our neighborhood who learns that his parents have planned a Dakota, or Wyoming, or other, vacation says, sooner or later, "An' we'll see real Indians too!" I guess I haven't been around Indians and whites, in the areas in which they live together, to understand the undercurrents. Several spots in Wyoming however, revealed in filmy manner the feeling against Indians. I mentioned them casually and heard nothing but criticism. Sure is a shame.

Enclosed is the latest I could find on Sitting Bull.

Best wishes,
