You might also be interested to know of the following:

Turtle beaded ornament worn on back by a child of Sitting Bull.

The necklace of the daughter of Red Cloud.

War clubs picked up on the battlefield after Wounded Knee.

A large painting, delicately drawn and colored, on light brown cloth depicting "Conflict between the Sioux and Crow Indians as an Indian saw and painted it before 1889. The painting was bought by A. G. Johnson from Rain-in-the-Face. On the Pine Ridge Reservation 1900-1910.

Gun from the Little Big Horn.

Photograph of One Bull, favorite nephew of Sitting Bull, who was in the Custer Massacre. He had 10 wives. On information received in 1942 One Bull was living at 92.

Tobacco pouch of One Bull. It shows his coat-of-arms in the beaded work. "Note similarity to that of Sitting Bull."

Ornamental club of Sioux brave carried at a dance or "Wachupe" in Sitting Bull's teepee.

War club carried by One Bull in the Custer Massacre.

Alice Quimby, the little girl free for whom the drawings were made, was the daughter of Capt. H. B. Quimby, 25th U.S. Infantry, 1882-1884. When Sitting Bull's tribe was held as prisoners of war at Fort Randalls, South Dakota. During this period Sitting Bull and his wife became fery good friends of the Quimby family. The articles on exhibition were his property. He gave them to Capt. Quimby and his wife. The drawings were drawn by Sitting Bull and represent how Sitting Bull was made chief of his tribe. Sitting Bull is always on a horse. He presented them to Mrs. Quimby as a parting mit?

I hope that this information will be helpful to you. Possibly you will wish to photograph some of these articles and I believe you will find the museum people most cooperative. I do not know any of them personally, however, but will be glad to give you the name of the one to contact if you wish. I you may know that Chief Gall is buried in the cemetery at the Episcopal Cam. Mission School of St. Elizabeth's at Wakapala, South Dakota. He used to come into the church and sit in the back seat, and later became a Christian. accertain

Sincerely yours,

Rude K. Smith (wis. Lloyd W.)