My dear Mr. Campbell:

Your talk about the "Plains Indians" at the recent meeting of the Mississippi Valley Historical Association led me to believe that you might be interested, if you do not already know all about him, in an old gentleman here in Superior who, according to his community reputation, has a vast collection of photographs of frontier characters, army officers, and Indian chiefs. Since I have not lived long in Superior I did not hear of him until a few weeks before going to Lincoln, nor have I had an opportunity to get in contact with him since, but if he has one third of the pictures and information he is reputed to have on the Plains Indians, he might be worth getting in contact with. Your hero, "Sitting Bull", according to tradition, and perhaps in harmony with his name, sat for more photographs than any other subject in his collection. He is supposed to be an intimate friend of the old chief.

The name of this local photographer is D. F. Barry. If you have not already looked into the possibilities he offers, let me know and I will talk to the old gentleman and see if he has anything that you need.

Should business or pleasure bring you north next summer, drop in and we will get in contact with him.

Very truly yours

J. D. Hill.
