

Lonely Swiss Artist Roved Dakota In '40's In Quest Of Beauty

No. 3 in a series on the development of the tradition of the indigeneous art of the Middle Border region.

A drab government publication is not the place one would expect to find a poignant story of an artist braving travel hardships of the West a century ago in quest of abstract beauty. But the "Journal of Rudolph Friederich Kurz" (U. S. Government Printing Office, 1937,) a copy of which is in the Friends of the Middle Border Collection of Regional literature, provides just such a tale.

Kurz was a young Swiss who, while studying art in Paris, became obsessed with a desire to catch on canvas the evanescent lines of abstract esthetics. The ancient Greeks, he thought, had come close to this with sculpture because they worked from the human form, untrammelled by the conventions of civilization. To secure similiar subjects he decided to seek the Indians of the New World. The Mexican War was in progress in 1846, so he was diverted to the Upper Missouri Valley, where he lived until 1852 when he returned to Switzerland.

Artist had 'Tough Time.'

"The artist had what we would call a tough time of it," declares Dr. James A. Van Kirk, Supervising Director of FMB, "Nearsighted and speaking with a German accent, he was referred to as 'The Dutchman' by rough westerners. They not unnaturally thought him 'queer' because he was more interested in painting Indians than in cheating them out of valuable furs."

Kurz poured out his heart into his journal, recording frankly his observations on the shabby treatment he received, the customs of mountain men, fur traders, Mormons, Indians, and others whom he met. Quite naively he reports how, when threatened by Indians, he insisted upon picking up his scattered pencils and sketch books. Once he provoked his guide to desperation by loitering to draw the graceful curves of an antelope's antlers.

Lived at Old Ft. Pierre

Indian dances, costumes, bull boats (coracles made of raw buffalo hides), ponies, or even the graceful design of moss on a stone, interested him. He spent much time at Fort Pierre across the river from South Dakota's capital, and at Ft. Union on the North Dakota-Montana boundary. Wherever he went, he confided his innermost thoughts to his diary; and what he saw, to his sketchbook.

Back in Switzerland, he failed to win the acclaim he had expected and settled down as an obscure teacher in an academy at Berne, dying there in 1871. His diary and his sketches gathered dust for many years, finally coming to the attention of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington which, in 1937, issued a translation of the journal copiously illustrated by plates.

F M B Has Tinted Prints

The following photographic copies of his sketches, colored by Miss Frances Fuller of San Francisco, have been presented to FMB's Dakota Galleries:

Kurz Himself (from a finished painting); Bull Boats, Fort Berthold, N. D., July 13, 1851; Bags of Crow Indians and Iowa Maidens; and

The Westerners Welcome New Corresponding Members

CORRESPONDING MEMBERS

The Westerners of Chicago invite any man interested in Western history, not residing in Chicago or vicinity, to become a corresponding member. Annual dues are three dollars (make checks payable to Franklin J. Meine, Treasurer, and send to Dr. Herbert A. Kellar, 679 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill.) The application should be accompanied by a statement of the new member's special interest in Western history and a brief biography.

Corresponding membership includes the privilege of attending monthly meetings of The Westerners in Chicago and an annual subscription to its publication, "The Brandbook"; also an annual subscription to its quarterly, The Middle Border Bulletin.

The following is a list of corresponding members as of October 1, 1944:

JAMES TRUSLOW ADAMS—Historian, Southport, Conn.
EDWARD P. ALEXANDER—Wisconsin Historical Society, Madison, Wis.
CLINTON P. ANDERSON—Congressman-at-large from New Mexico, Washington, D. C.
EDWIN A. BEMIS—Managing director, Colorado Press Association, Inc., Boulder, Colo. and publisher, "Littleton Independent."
MERRILL G. BURLINGAME—Professor of history, Montana State College, Bozeman, Mont.
E. A. BRINNSTOOL—Historian and writer, Los Angeles, Calif.
RALPH H. CASE—Lawyer and attorney for the Sioux Nation, Washington, D. C.
BADGER CLARK—Poet and lecturer, Custer, S. D.
LIEUT. HAROLD COOLEY—Archeologist and free lance writer, now in Eglin Field, Fla.
LEE H. CORNELL—Geologist, Stanolind Oil and Gas company, Wichita, Kans.
O. W. COURSEY—Author and poet, Huron, S. D.
J. P. COX—Printer and newspaper publisher, Owensville, Indiana.
ROBERT S. ELLISON—Rancher and mayor of Manitowish Springs, Colo.
CAPT. EDWARD EMERINE—Former newspaper man, Public Relations Officer, Air Transport Command, Rosecrans Field, St. Joseph, Mo.
EARL E. FORREST—Author, Washington Pa.
JOHN T. FREDERICK—Author, book critic and radio commentator, Glennie, Mich.
MAURICE FRINK—"Elkhart Daily Truth," Elkhart, Ind.
J. H. GIPSON—President, Caxton Printers, Ltd. Caldwell, Idaho.
JOSEPH MILLS HANSON—Author, historian, poet; custodian, Manassas, Va.
GEORGE H. HESS, Jr.—Comptroller, Great Northern Railway company, St. Paul Minn.
JOHN D. HICKS—Professor of history, University of California, Berkeley, Calif.
W. N. HILL—Retired business man, Peoria, Ill.
RALPH V. HUNKINS—Superintendent of schools, Lead, S. D.
PHILIP D. JORDAN—Professor of American history, Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.
WILLIAM F. KELLEHER—Appraiser of libraries and literary material, Cliffside Park N. J.
W. LANGDON KIHN—Artist, Hadlyme, Conn.
LOUIS KNOTT KOONTZ—Professor of history, University of California at Los Angeles; editor, "Pacific Historical Review," Los Angeles, Calif.
HERBERT KRAUSE—Author, Sioux Falls, S. D.

Packhorse; Mandan Horseman, August 23, 1851; Crow Saddle, October 5, 1850; Returning from the Dobies Ball, Fort Pierre, July 4, 1851; Horse Guard of Fort Berthold, (N. D.); Fur Trader and Engagees (French-Canadian employees), August 28, 1851; Packet Boat 'St. Ange' on Missouri, August, 7, 1851, Californians; Council Bluffs (in the distance) May 18, 1851

Here with pictures by George Catlin (American Artist, 1796-1872), and Karl Bodmer (1809-1893), who accompanied Prince Maximilian of Wied on a scientific exploration up the Missouri, these sketches take their place as examples of early Middle Border art.

"Kurz was not a great artist," says Dr. Van Kirk. "But with a deadly sincerity he "followed the gleam to a rough and alien land, and with fidelity to his ideal attempted to capture esthetic highlights of a crude life."

DAVID MAGOWAN—Vice-president and advertising director, Western Newspaper Union, New York.
WILL M. MAUPIN—Retired newspaper man, Clay Center, Neb.
LUCULLUS VIRGIL McWHORTER—Author and historian, Yakima, Wash.
EDGAR F. MEDARY—Retired newspaper publisher, Waukon, Iowa.
CHARLES A. NINES, Jr.—Executive, Burroughs Adding Machine company, Washington, D. C.
CAPT. RUSSELL V. STEELE—Late R. A. M. C., Penrhyn Lodge, Gloucester Gate, London.
FOREST SWEET—Book and manuscript dealer, Battle Creek, Mich.
RALPH WALLACE—Free lance writer, New York.
SGT. HARRY S. WATSON—Columnist, Stars and Stripes, APO 759, c/o Postmaster, New York.
BENJAMIN F. WESCOAT—Retired Indian Service teacher, Nora Springs, Iowa.
CLARK WISSLER—Anthropologist, curator emeritus American Museum of Natural History, New York City.

CHARTER RESIDENT MEMBERS

The following is a list of the charter resident members of the Westerners of Chicago (affiliated with Friends of the Middle Border, at Mitchell S. D., through the Chicago chapter of FMB).

JAY ADLER—Part owner and operator of Mickleberry's Log Cabin restaurant.
FREDRIC BABCOCK—Editor, Sunday book section, "Chicago Tribune."
BEN ALBERT BENSON—Artist.
WALTER BLAIR—Professor of English, University of Chicago.
E. DOUGLAS BRANCH—Professor of English, Montana State College, Bozeman, Mont.
EDWARD T. CAMENISCH—Lecturer.
LELAND D. CASE—Editor, "The Rotarian," Magazine.
H. M. CRITCHFIELD—Chief of Lands section, United States Indian Service.
DR. IRVING S. CUTTER—Health editor, "Chicago Tribune."
ARTHUR A. DAILEY—General advertising manager, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company.
CLIFFORD C. DUNLAP—Free lance research worker.
HARVEY W. FRAMBERG—Vice president, Barnes-Crosby Engraving Company.
SEYMOUR J. FRANK—Attorney.
EVERETT D. GRAFF—President, Ryerson Steel company.
FRED B. HACKETT—Elevator service engineer.
MANNEL HAHN—Research service, "The Rotarian" Magazine.
A. L. HALLOWELL—Department of anthropology, Northwestern University.
WRIGHT A. HOWES—Bookseller.
HANS HUTH—Museum of Science and Industry.
JOHN H. JAMESON—Vice-president and copy chief, McCann-Erickson Advertising agency.
LEIGH JERRARD—Head of Land office, Chicago and Northwestern Railway.
ALBERT JOHANNSEN—Professor emeritus of geology, University of Chicago.
HERBERT A. KELLAR—Director, McCormick Historical association.
PAUL W. KIESER—Director of Public relations, Snicer Manufacturing company, Toledo, Ohio.
*DOUGLAS G. McMURTRIE—Typographic consultant, Ludow Typographic company.
FRANKLIN J. MEINE—Editor, Consolidated Book Publishers, Inc.
JOHN G. NEIHARDT—Chief of information, United States Indian Service.
CLARENCE S. PAINE—Librarian, Beloit College, Beloit, Wis.
STANLEY PARGELLIS—Librarian, Newberry Library.
LESLIE M. PARKER—Patent attorney.
NORMAN J. PARKER—Patent attorney.
ALBERT PARRY—Lecturer and author.
CARL P. RUSSELL—Chief naturalist, National Park Service.
DON RUSSELL—Editorial writer, "Chicago Daily News."
S. J. SACKETT—Oil development executive.
HERMAN GASTRELL SEELY—Financial editor, "Chicago Daily News."
JAMES R. SHARP—Service department, Pure Oil company.
J. H. SHERA—Chief of preparations department, University of Chicago library.
TRACY STREVEY—Professor of history, Northwestern University.
PAUL TEETOR—Business manager, "The Rotarian".
ELMO SCOTT WATSON—Editor, "Publisher's Auxiliary," and professorial lecturer in journalism, Northwestern University.
SIDNEY WELLS—Art director, McCann-Erickson Advertising agency.
BURLEIGH WITHERS—Advertising illustrator, Burleigh Withers-McCallum-Stearns company.
* Deceased.