

A very striking change in public sentiment on the Indian question has shown itself in the utterances of the public press during the Dakota troubles. There has been manifest a far greater willingness to look on both sides of the question, to consider fairly the grievances of the Indians, and to accept a reasonable explanation of the causes of the disturbance. The Association has done a large and important work in supplying newspapers with the information which it has received from reliable correspondents in Dakota, both as to the facts of the situation and as to the conclusions which might reasonably be drawn from them. In this way our utterances have gone through all parts of the country to many thousand readers, and have materially affected the public view of the situation. We desire to express our sense of appreciation to the press at large for their valuable co-operation.

Among those newspapers to which we are indebted either for the publication of our communications, or editorial support of our views are:-

New York Times, Tribune, Press, Evening Post, Mail and Express, Sun, Herald, Telegram, World, Harper's Weekly, Christian Union, The Independent, The Nation, The Observer, Christian Intelligencer, Christian at Work, Church Union, The Witness, Once a Week, The Voice; Philadelphia Press, Ledger, Inquirer, North American, Times, Philadelphia Press, Ledger, Inquirer, North American, Times, Record, Evening Bulletin, Evening Telegraph, Friends' Review, National Baptist, Christian Statesman, Christian Instructor, Standard of the Cross; Boston Post, Herald, Transcript, Journal, Advertiser, Christian Register, Morning Star, Zion's Herald; Springfield Republican and Union; Hartford Courant, New Haven News, Palladium, Register, Religious Herald; Newark Advertiser, Princeton Press, Albany Times, Press and Knickerbocker; Buffalo Express, Courier; Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, Herald, Union and Advertiser; Syracuse Standard, Poughkeepsie News, Press;
