My dear Branch:

I don't know where you may be, so I am sending this letter through your publisher. I have just returned from Boulder, via Denver and New Mexico. Had a grand time fishing for trout down there. Perhaps I should say they fished for me, they bit so fast.

May I ask a question? I have been checking through your last book again for notes which may help me on Sitting Bull. On page 219 I find a reference to the hunt of October 1883, in which Sitting Bull and his band took part. Can you give me the title of the account of that expedition? If so, I shall be grateful.

I recently got a feeler from your publisher with regard to my life of SB. I attribute that to you. Thanks very much.

Cordially yours,

W S Campbell
