

ad
New York City
October 5, 1932.

Mr. Stanley Vestal, Author of Sitting Bull, Who was a real Indian and a Real Man.
Houghton, Mifflin Co
Boston, Mass.

My dear Mr. Vestal:

In the Octo 2, 1932 New York Times Book, Review, I was instantly interested in your book.
Being a lover of American Ethnology for the past 20 years, known for my Indian programs over the Radio, and with the same concept and understanding of the injustices given this race, every seeking thru' my programs to bring to the ignorant public the truths of this history, I more than appreciated this review. Now I must read your book. But in the meanwhile it will interest you to know that this Tuesday Oct 4th, I gave you the finest tribute over the Air, as I am giving educational Indian programs every Tuesday from Station W.M.I.L. At Namms Store in Brooklyn and I surely did give your book a send off, for I wanted the people to read it.

In this very brief letter, it is impossible to convey the natural response I would feel toward one, writing as you do, with the true concept of the Indian. But I wish you more than success. I hope to get an autographed copy some day of your book, that I may still further show it and urge my many followers to