

875 MARION ST.
DENVER, COLO.

March 28, 1932.

Dear Professor Campbell:-

In writing you this AM, I should have asked you whether you have a map or maps to go with the Life of Dittling Bull? It adds so much to the interest & enables the reader to know where he is at!

I urged Gen A. L. Scott to do this in his "Some Memories of a Soldier" which you doubtless have read. It came out without it & I made up one & if you have the work I'll gladly send you a complimentary copy of the map.

I specialize in Western Maps & several years ago Gen Chas King & I rescued from oblivion Reynolds' Map of 1859-60 - Revised to 1876 of which I secured a scrap that you may see about it is it was made by the Class Map Co - was not of much use. I have a Parry's Negative of it. About a year ago I got the Negative of a very large 5' x 7' map of the U.S. West of the Mississippi - was out of print & secured a scrap also of that.

I know that Dittling Bull's route was not over