

(The Hunkback) was leader

Wigwags were made of animal hides ornamented with scalp hairs buffalo skulls and Elk horns also Medicine bows to drive out the evil spirits.

Kaugi-yatepi - Crow King one of the best and bravest of the Sioux. It was due to his influence that the Sioux finally let off their destructive wars of many years against the Pale-faces and also he also prevented that they did in useless battles. His appearance was simple. A red eagle feather in the scalp hairs and a few scalp lock on the seams of his leather clothes were the only ornaments of the warrior who was wrapped into his blanket ~~to~~ into a toga.

Mato-sapa - Black Bear also had buried the Hatchet; Shonan finds a resemblance to Dante.

Cauchcha-ke in his wigwag holding counsel with his warriors. Buffalo hides served as seats. Arms ornaments tobacco pouches and mocassins of the chief were hanging on two poles to the right and left. "Hau" greeting formula. Hau Cole friend. Cauchcha-ke over six feet tall, broad shouldered and had more than 1000 followers.

Face broad, eyes noticeably slanting the powerful cheek-bones were painted yellow, braids falling over the chest were ornamented with strips of wrasel fur and red flannel. The head was surrounded by a beautiful crown of eagle feathers.