

all about the Indian's feelings toward the Whitemen about the Black Hills. The Government has always paid the Indians here for everything but the old Indians never got much. Seemed to be so much red tape that the present generation are spending the money now that the Indians should have had in the earlier days. The hostiles sure had their plans well laid to massacre the Commission from Washington but a man by the name of Louie Agard upset them somewhat so there was only a lot of threatening and loud talk and a decided breaking up of the Council.

Well, I have copied a few little things I have run across that might interest you. I am not a good writer & have lots
