

years The black cloth did not mean any thing, It was an old custom to tie ones head with a handkerchief when one expected to be out in the night air, to protect from the cold - I know that Mato vanartaka was some kin to S. B. but I don't know just what. S. B's sister was married to Grey Eagle - but Grey Eagle was secretly against S. B. since that trouble I told they had in Canada.
The war bonnet was torn near O'Fallon Creek in Montana between O'Fallon and Yellow Stone The Sioux chased the crows on back all day till their horses played out and they killed all the crows about twenty in all - How is carpenter work down there? If my husband could get work he would spend the winter south. Very Truly

Mrs J. F. Waggoner