

It was Sitting Bull who said "The Great Spirit made me an Indian but NOT a reservation Indian! I would rather go hungry when game is scarce than to receive daily rations and lose my liberty."

It was this great man, Sitting Bull, that Red Tomahawk murdered, not because Sitting Bull had committed any crime, not that he had even been charged with committing any offence; but for this cowardly slaying, Red Tomahawk is now paraded, feasted and lionized, before our very eyes. Are we to understand that one who acts in a like manner is to be rewarded and taken into the confidence of those in authority? Are the destinies of our Indians to be guided and governed through any suggestion of his or not? This morning's Post carried two articles lauding Red Tomahawk to the skies, and says he is to be at luncheon at the White House. I marvel at the number of dignitaries duped by this murderer of Sitting Bull.

For your further information, I enclose a slip with the picture of William Jacobs, a member of the Sioux Nation, on the back of which he names our prominent Sioux Chiefs. You will note that he did not mention Red Tomahawk at all.

We Indians cannot control men's clubs and organizations which, for publicity purposes, take Red Tomahawk and place him on a pedestal for no other reason than that HE KILLED SITTING BULL. However, we feel free to come to you, requesting that this man Red Tomahawk, be disregarded in
