Source of his power

S. B., chief of hostile camp, had ca. 60 lodges on whom he could at all times depend. He was "the host of the hostiles", and as such received & entertained their visitors. These visitors gave him many presents, & he was thus enabled to <sup>make many</sup> give presents in return. All visitors paid tribute to him, so he gave liberally to the most influential chiefs, i.e., he "put it where it would do the most good." In this way he became the over
