Dear Professor: -

This afternoon I received your package containing the Mrs.

My last letter seems to have been too optimistic as to the time when my drawings would be finished. I lost a good deal of time last week when I discovered after having finished the head-piece for Chap. 9 that the perspective was all wrong. The figures on the left side of the composition (of the buffalo dance) were much too small as compared with those on the right side.

Linear perspective enters so rarely into my work that I had not thought of first determining the exact size of every figure, as I ought to have done.

Then came the cold spell which sent us all shivering into the kitchen as the plumbers cannot get registers of the heating system for our apartment. That meant the loss of two more forenoons. (46° F. at 7 a.m.)

Finally I have run on a real good sized snag in the tail-piece for Chap. 8 (Storm in the Rockies)
