Dear Campbell:

After several strenuous weeks working for the annual art exhibition I seize the first opportunity to write to you.

We were <sup>e</sup>very much disappointed indeed not to see you and your family, as we expected, and hope that you will pass through this city on another occasion.

We hope that your daughter has fully recovered from her illness and that you are now comfortably settled for the winter.

During the summer I met in St. Charles a young friend of mine who teaches biology and botany at the Kansas City Junior College. He expects to get his Doctor's degree next January and intends to take a real holiday during the coming summer, inviting me to go with him and make suggestions of a place or places that might be interesting to a botanist as well as <sup>to</sup> an artist. Since I have had the ~~animal~~ studies for several pictures of large American game animals for several years, lacking only the proper western landscape setting, I have thought of going with my botanist friend to the Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado. We intend going with a machine and using <sup>the</sup> the tourist camps on the way from Kansas City to the, and, if they are to be found there, in the park.

Have you any personal experience of that place or similar places? I would like to know particularly what camping facilities are to be expected there.

Hoping that you and your family are well, yours, as ever,

Fredrick W. Wygold
