Dear Mr. Campbell:

Thanks very much for the reply to my inquiry. I have been reaching the same conclusions with reference to the problems and efficiency of the Indian police.

I have written the National Archives and may get some help there, though I am not optimistic as I visited there last year incidental to some other research and inquired in vain for a file on Indian police. The Bureau of Indian Affairs has given me a little information on the current status of the police.

You certainly left little to be done on the police role in the death of Sitting Bull. I expect to find your other references as valuable.

Thanks again,

William T. Hagan
