

Some of SB's people ran down to Pine Ridge and Cheyenne River.

After SB was killed his wives were taken to the agency. After that they came down to Pine Ridge and didn't go back to Standing Rock. They have been living there ever since.

Thunder Hawk was the chief of a band.

Bear's Rib was most known on account of his father. Personally is not regarded as a great man. His father was a great warrior.

Long Mandan, an uncle of John Grass. Married a Ree woman. His shirt is weasel skin. Horizontal feather second or third coup.

Gall not very tall, but tall and well built. You can't help but feel very friendly when you see him. You are not afraid to talk to him. SB was so reserved it was not easy to approach him like it was Gall.

Iron Horn, a brother of Rain-in-the-Face. Was chief of a small band. H Huncpapa. Is not recognized as a chief. Was just under another chief, Bear Face. He has no right to carry a chief's pipe unless he was taking some prominent part in the Sun Dance. Sometimes the stuidos furnish the costumes the pictures are taken in. This man is more popular known as the Camp Crier. That was his job. He is not a chief at all. Just an ordinary old timer.

Spotted Tail. - I don't think much of him. You can't claim him a chief like Gall and SB. He is more vindictive, revengeful. I am one of those who don't like what he did. The trick he played on a man by taking his wife away - Crow Dog's wife. His father was not a chief. Never heard the old timers speak of him as a warrior. Most of his talks that had some influence with the old timers just in time when they needed a man to protect them from invasion of whites that were trying to get possessions of Black hands. He was more of a spokesman like John Grass. I have also heard that he sold out to the white people.
