

tribal doings. Father Craft carried an Indian pipe and a tobacco pouch. He smoked Indian tobacco with the Indians. This pipe had been given him by someone.

Other Men Close to SB - Black Bird was one of his supporters. Village Center and all of Gray relatives. Running Hawk, One Elk. There were some very good men among them. Black Bird was a boy with SB. He is the Black Bird who is in the story about SB breaking his arrow. There were several others: Red Feather, Strike-the-Kettle, Pass Beyond, Turning Holy. These were mostly old men who had grown up with SB. They were men who had either grown up with him or had been on the war-path with him or on a buffalo hunt. Some of them were very expert with arrow-making and other native arts and different games. Toy-making. Then again they all belonged to different societies together - Strong Hearts, Fox Society, and especially Silent Waters. Crazy Bull. Black Bird was one of the main disturbers in the trouble. He was quick tempered.

The right translation for Catch-the-Bear's name is Bear-that-Catches. There was another man who was one of SB's camp criers, ~~Lone Bear~~.

These camp criers were not paid. They have to earn what they get. It requires a man that through his voice could influence the Indians to obey. Not only that, they should have the gift of making their own songs, mostly songs of praise or songs of gratitude. In that way the crier voices the appreciation of things from the head men of the tribe for any donations given them. Then again, whenever anyone brings in any cooked food to headquarters all the old men who could sing would run out and proclaim through song who the donors were. If there was no one there the camp crier posted the news. Lone Man's father was a camp crier. The camp crier makes nearly all the announcements of the tribe. If a man has lost something or wants to make an announcement
