Dear sir:

I am enclosing herewith $2.00, which I intend as an honorarium for someone who can interpret a word which I have reason to believe may be from the Crow language. It is the name of a horse belonging to an old fur trapper in your country about 100 years ago.

Of course it may not be a Crow word, but if it sounds like one I should be very happy to have the interpretation at your earliest convenience. The word is Too Shebit.

Sincerely yours,

W. S. Campbell

The Crow word "Shua-Shebit" means dark Buckskin or "a blue horse".
"Eshoo-Shebit" means light Buckskin
