Dear Dr. Campbell,

I thought I would take advantage of your invitation to write you another letter.

Since I last wrote you I was able to read a copy of your "Warpath." It is just like any of your other books - grand. Again you've presented the old time Plains & Sioux from the viewpoint of the tribe itself and again you've brought to life many of the points which other historians get so mixed up, such as Red Cloud not participating in or leading the Sioux in the Wagon Box fight. It surely was grand and I hope some day to get a copy of it for myself.

I obtained a copy of "Sitting Bull" for myself. I have just finished re-reading it and now than ever do I think you're the greatest writer that ever lived. That is not intended as flattery, it is just a fellow
