around the neck + one leg of the horse, firing + lancing from underneath the horses' necks, so that there was no part of the Indian at which we could aim.

"Their shouting + personal appearance was so hideous that it terrified the horses more than our own + we did them almost uncontrolable before we dismounted + placed them behind the rocks"

"The Indians came not in a line but in flocks or herds like buffaloes, + they piled in up on us until I think there must have been one thousand or fifteen hundred in our immediate front, but they refused to fight when they found us skinned behind the rocks + ran off to our left
