

4 Bears buried his son in a tipi - During the time 4 Bears waited for his wounds to heal birds built a nest in the crotch of the tipi - when 4 Bears visits the tipi this fact reminds him of the passing of time & hastens his vengeance

---

Does the fact that whirlwinds are "ghosts" to an Indian have any connection with the belief of the Piegan that the hereafter is a region of sandhills known to them? The loose sand there would make small whirlwinds more visible & hence more (apparent) common there than on the grassy prairie -

---

An artist is one who may see no more than others. In any case, he believes what he sees, & admits it in so many words.