

As for the Buffalo fight of course you have the Transporter acct, which Sam Riding copied in his "Cherokee Strip". One of those two cowboys was living in '42 and he sent me a letter that took 18¢ postage. He was a Kans. boy who lived near Minneapolis and was only about 16 when he went through the ordeal. I did not know him personally, but he asked old settlers at Minneapolis to write him, so I wrote. He knew many people that we did - even my sister-in-law's family at Bennington.

If you write about Pat Hennessey, be careful. I think even our old friend at Euclid got taken in by an old blow who wanted to get his name in a book, and that little squirt at Bison who thinks he is authority on Pat! He gives me a pain. I demanded to know Grant Foreman's authority but he dodged it. Paul Willman said the Kiowas did it, but the Quaker teacher who was teaching the Kiowa kids, said they were not off the Res. and that it was the date of their annual religious festival and they believed if they were not there they would not live to see another festival. Company has come in, so I must close,
Yours in haste,
Nella Snider
