Dear sir:

On March 17, 1876, Colonel J. J. Reynolds attacked a Sioux camp on Powder River, and was afterwards court-martialled following charges preferred by his superior officer, General George Crook.

Is the evidence presented in his trial available? If so, what would be the cost of photostating or microfilming the record?

I should be grateful if you can give me this information at your earliest convenience.

Cordially,

W. S. CAMPBELL
