

- 460 Needle Books, about $2\frac{1}{4}$ by $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches, chamois skin leaves and beaded on golden, brown and green skins60
- Bows and Arrows, such as our Indian boys use. Made of strong wood with sinew strings, and four arrows, metal tipped.....$1.50 to $2.50
- Pipes of Peace, made of red and black pipestone, by the Indians. All fitted with long stems, some plain pieces of wood and others elaborately decorated. Prices according to quality, up to.....$10.00
- Feather Fans. Used in warm weather, and in religious ceremonies. Very decorative$1.25 and up
- Small Tepees. Exact models of those in actual use, and made by mothers for their little daughters. All are made of cloth and more or less decorated with beading. Prices according to size and beading$5.00 and up
- Baby Carriers, full size, full beaded, and only those that have been in actual use$25.00

Old Relics. There are practically none of these things among our Indians now, as nearly everything of value in this line was bought up years ago. Once in a while some old woman will bring in a damaged article and ask fancy prices for it, but the chances are, it has no value whatever.

Dresses and Suits. As a rule, we have some squaw buckskin dresses on hand at all times, and generally one or more of the girl's suits, but we usually have to special out men's garments, such as leggins and shirts. As these goods vary so much in quality, it is very hard to quote prices, as each article carries its own price. In gen-