INGRAM DIVORCE AIRED

Third Day of Testimony Concluded
With Defendant on Stand.

Matrimonial differences of the John Ingrams saw their third day's airing in the district court yesterday and still had another day in prospect as Thursday ended with some testimony left yet to be presented.

Yesterday's court day was concluded with an attempt by the defendant husband—defendant in his wife's suit for separate maintenance and plaintiff in his own action for divorce—to put into the court record an alleged deposition by a Tulsa surgeon relating to an operation he had performed for Mrs. Ingram, and which, Ingram claims, resulted in her sterility. The deposition was temporarily excluded by Judge Walker following an encounter between attorneys.

Ingram himself, his daughter, Julia, and an accountant who has just completed an audit of Ingram's pool hall on South Main street, kept the stand most of yesterday. Ingram testified that he was running his business on a practically insolvent basis, and denied that he was worth $100,000 as alleged by his wife.

REAGAN PROTESTS AGAINST INDIAN STATUE OF HOUSTON.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE GLOBE-DEMOCRAT.

AUSTIN, TEX., March 5.—The statue of Gen. Sam Houston to be placed in the capitol at Washington, which Miss Elizabeth Ney, the sculptor, is under contract to execute, is to be a duplicate of the statue which she has just finished and placed in the capitol at Austin. This statue represents Houston as an Indian at the time he was living with the Cherokee tribe after his self-banishment from Tennessee.

Judge John H. Reagan, who knew Houston intimately, is aroused over the Indian statue, and in a letter to Senator A. B. Davidson to-day he protests against its duplicate being placed in the national capitol. He says:

Surely no member of Gen. Houston's family, or real friends of his, could wish to see him exhibited in that great collection of statues as of the only period of his life of which neither he nor his family or real friends can feel proud. He who had been governor of the state of Tennessee, general of the armies which won the independence of Texas, was twice president of the republic of Texas, three times sent by Texas to the United States Senate, and afterward governor of this great state, should not be represented by such a travesty as the one in our capitol representing him in the garb of an Indian with a leather hunting shirt, and instead of a bow and arrow for the sake of unity of design, the representation of a sword to accompany the hunting shirt. His great character was that of a soldier and a statesman, and not of an Indian. In the name of justice, of honor and of good taste, and because of our appreciation of the memory of this great and distinguished general, statesman and citizen, as one citizen of Texas, I protest against the outrage upon Houston's memory of sending this thing to Washington.
