

The German Hun -

The Hun undersea industry appears to have struck the N. Y. Harbor the morning of June 3, 1918. And its prey was 9 merchant vessels -

A mighty poor report guard apparently, & when the U. S. Fleet steams in all its glory & magnificence

A screw-loose somewhere, in U. S. govt rulers - but the people not allowed to complain - by law - -

June 4, 1918. nice bright day - clear & sunny - thought to disturb equanimity - only bad news from New York City - by shipping banks by Hun Subs

Look out now for the Hun air boats as we predicted when the Emden popped up in N. Y. City will suffer same as Rheims has, & pay billions of money in indemnity too - & yet we are behind in men, shipping, airplanes & pockets for our sea costs - Politics & more politics -
