Mrs. Jacob Vanderbilt, who opened a smoking parlor for ladies in a fashionable quarter of New York, has been ordered to "move on" by her landlord, and expresses her conviction that this is part of the persecution to which she is subjected because of her innovation in New York customs, an innovation which, it appears, is quite lawful, notwithstanding its genuine shockingness to a very large element of society. But why, it may be relevantly asked, should a "smoking parlor" be maintained for women, any more than for men? New York women are certainly privileged to smoke on the street, as the men do. This is a free, an enlightened and emancipated country. The use of tobacco is prohibited to none but minors, and in their case the limitation is only upon cigarettes. Any lady 18 years or over may smoke upon the street in any manner, mode or degree that suits her, and the law will protect her in her right. A pipe is hers if she wants it. No one will be so ungallant as to deny her that in which the humblest workman may indulge freely and openly in all public places. No voice has yet to come from the leaders of feminine thought, who have long contended for equal rights for both sexes, but when it does come we are sure it will be found on the side of immovable justice. There is no sex in smoking. If there are women in New York who wish to carry a sack of cigarette tobacco in their shopping bags, or a brierwood pipe, that is their affair. The only restriction which can conscientiously and justly be made upon it will be indicated on placards in the department stores: "Ladies will please not smoke in the lace department." "Smoking room for ladies on fourth floor—take elevator 'D'."

FIVE TRIBES FAVOR SEPARATE STATEHOOD

International Council of Chiefs at Eufala, I. T., Recommend Constitutional Convention.

ASK SUPPRESSION OF SALOONS

Special Election on the Abolition of Tribal Government Probably Will Be Held Next December.

From the Clinton (Mo.) Republican.
 An esteemed contemporary lately occupied considerable space to say what it thinks the Republican party of Missouri needs in the way of leaders, all of which is but an addition to the foolish factionalism that does the Republican party in Missouri so much harm. What the Republicans of Missouri need is more men and leaders like John H. Bothwell of Sedalia. Men, big, brainy, capable and courageous. Men, without personal ambition, honest and intent upon teaching by precept and example the sterling truths of Republicanism. Men who serve their party because they love its principles rather than its patronage and are seeking its success in order to benefit the state and nation, rather than to secure position. Give the patient, persevering, always-faithful Republican party of Missouri a score of such leaders and it will follow them with a zeal and devotion unexcelled by Republicans anywhere.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
 Eufaula, I. T., May 21.—The meeting of the International Council of the Chiefs of the Five Civilized Tribes adjourned at 6 o'clock this afternoon after adopting the following resolutions:
 "Whereas, The United States Government in the several treaties with the Five Civilized Tribes, under which the present tribal governments were organized, guaranteed that the limits of no State or Territory should ever be extended around the Five Civilized Tribes without their consent, we, the chief executives and representatives of the Five Civilized Tribes, assembled at Eufaula, make the following recommendations, the Cherokee and Chickasaw executives concurring:
 "The chief executive of each nation shall in his next message to the General Council of his nation recommend legislation authorizing the chief executive to call an election to decide whether or not the members of his nation are in favor of an international convention.

"This convention shall be composed of twenty delegates from each of the Five Civilized Tribes and shall be held for the purpose of framing a constitution for a State government to succeed the several tribal governments which expire by treaty provisions March 4, 1906.
 "The General Council of each nation shall instruct its delegates to incorporate in the constitution a provision prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within the boundaries of the State to be formed out of the Indian Territory.
 "We recommend that the citizens of each nation vote for the constitutional convention. We recommend that each nation hold said election not later than December 20, 1903.
 "We recommend that the international constitutional convention be held not later than February 1, 1904.
 "We recommend that the General Council of each nation at its next session memorialize Congress for statehood, separate from Oklahoma, to become effective March 4, 1904, 1906, and that such memorial be transmitted to Congress, the President and the Secretary of the Interior.
 "We further recommend that the General Council of each nation address a memorial to the various religious and temperance organizations of the United States requesting them to assist the Indians of the Five Civilized Tribes in their efforts to prevent the annexation of the Indian Territory to Oklahoma and to secure a state government for Indian Territory under a constitution which will protect the Indians from the baleful influences of intoxicating liquors.
 "We recommend that the noncitizens hold a convention and ratify the constitution framed by the convention of the Five Civilized Tribes or propose whatever amendments they deem proper.
 "The president of the Constitutional Convention of the Five Civilized Tribes shall appoint two delegates from each of the five nations. These ten delegates shall invite the co-operation of a like number of delegates appointed by the convention of the noncitizens, and the two delegations shall take the constitution adopted by a conference committee and proceed to Washington and urge Congress to pass an enabling act authorizing the people of the Indian Territory to vote upon ratification of this constitution for members of the House of Representatives of the United States and for all elective officers provided for by the said constitution."
